

Session 1: Environmental and archeological omics

The analysis of ancient DNA from museum specimens and environmental samples can tell us much about the processes that have influenced the evolutionary and ecology of historic populations, communities and ecosystems. In this session, we will showcase such results with a particular emphasis on how ancient DNA can shape our understanding of contemporary environmental change.