

Session 2: Evolutionary and ecological omics

Monday 12 September, 15:05 - 16:55

Omics tools including emerging approaches and technologies are helping to advance our understanding of the relationship between genotype, phenotype and the environment. In this session we will explore how genome evolution, interactions with symbiont populations and adaptation shape organisms responses and resilience to land-use change, climate change and pollution.